+ Description

In the 1960s, it was in the Kochersberg region that the tarte flambée - now an unmissable speciality - made its appearance on restaurant tables. The tradition dates back to the day when bread was baked on farms, when, for a convivial finish, leftover bread dough was topped with cream, bacon and onions and baked in a bread oven. The tarte flambée was born.

Savoury with cream, bacon and onions, or sweet with apples, the choice is yours!

One thing is certain, tarte flambée is a dish synonymous with conviviality that's best enjoyed with your fingers!

Some of them are named in the list of the "best tarts flambées in Alsace", which can be consulted at
