+ Description

Fewer days of frost, rising summer temperatures, changes in rainfall patterns... The effects of climate change are already evident. They are impacting nature and altering human activities.

To tackle this challenge, there are two key principles: anticipate in order to adapt more effectively. This is what the Environment Department invites you to discover on a walk through the Ill*wald nature reserve.

What to bring: please wear walking shoes, or even wellies, and clothing suitable for the weather.
