Erstein and the Grand Ried: Authentic Alsace

Located between Strasbourg and Sélestat, the Erstein area lies at the heart of the Grand Ried, a region where nature, heritage, and Alsatian traditions come together.

As the region’s main town, Erstein invites visitors to discover its rich heritage and a history closely tied to sugar beet cultivation. The Musée Würth France Erstein, dedicated to modern and contemporary art, adds a unique cultural touch to the town’s attractions.

The Grand Ried is particularly notable for its unspoiled landscapes. Meadows, floodplain forests, rivers, and wetlands offer an ideal setting for walks or bike rides. Numerous trails allow visitors to explore the region’s bountiful natural environment, where flora and fauna reveal themselves throughout the seasons.

The region can also be explored through its charming villages, with their Alsatian-style houses, churches, and local heritage. As they wander along the paths, visitors can enjoy a more intimate side of Alsace, far from the hustle and bustle of major tourist sites.

Gastronomy, local products, traditional festivals, and local crafts are integral to the region’s identity and offer many opportunities to connect with others.

Whether you’re looking for a nature getaway, a bike ride, a cultural exploration, or simply the chance to slow down, Erstein and the Grand Ried offer a different way to experience Alsace: authentic, welcoming, and unspoiled.
