+ Description

This Neo-Romanesque church consists of a nave with side aisles, leading to a vaulted ceiling chorus with a semi-dome apse. On top of the sacristy, the steeple houses three bells forged during the second half of the 18th century. They were designed for the former parish church. On the gallery sits a 1867 organ, originally set up in the Dompeter Church by Joseph Stiehr before being transferred here in 1911.
