+ Description

The Verexal association, Verger Expérimental d'Alsace, is an experimental station serving the arboricultural profession. The station is based in Obernai and has a sales outlet open to private customers. This sales outlet enables us to communicate on all our research themes. It also reflects Alsace's market garden and fruit production, with the sale of seasonal fruit and vegetables, as well as many processed products from local producers. Throughout the year, the general public can enjoy apples and pears, as well as cherries, apricots and peaches from the orchard in summer. In autumn, mirabelle plums and questionnes complete the range of local fruits.
